Professional Summary :

Azala is a Banking and Finance lawyer with experience advising on a wide spectrum of domestic and cross-border financing transactions, particularly in the infrastructure and renewable energy sectors. Her transactional expertise spans financing transactions involving roads, hospitality, solar, and wind energy projects, with a strong emphasis on transaction structuring, security creation, and risk allocation. She has substantial experience in drafting, reviewing, negotiating, and vetting a broad range of financing and security documentation, including facility agreements, security trustee agreements, mortgages, deeds of hypothecation, pledge agreements, guarantees, and ancillary transaction documents.

Her practice also extends to General Corporate and M&A transactions, where she has advised on acquisitions, joint ventures, corporate restructurings, and strategic investments. She adopts a meticulous approach to legal due diligence in M&A transactions, ensuring that clients are fully apprised of regulatory, contractual, and financing risks. Azala's ability to integrate financing considerations with corporate transactional strategy makes her a trusted advisor to clients navigating complex transactions in the infrastructure, energy, and hospitality sectors.
